Cordoba is located in the heart of the country, between the pampas and an imposing mountain range. This is an important city, radiant with its economic and cultural characteristics. It was built in the late 16th century and has been continually renewed and enlarged over the centuries. Some important buildings, such as the Universidad Mayor de San Carlos, place the city as one of the greatest intellectual centres of South America. The city is a veritable outdoor museum with the Cabildo, the San Francisco Church, the Carmelite Monastery, the Manzana Jesuitica (UNESCO World Heritage Site) and many monuments like the Cathedral, the theater and the courthouse.
