

Hiking in Canada

Why not try hiking!

Take the opportunity on your motorhome trip in Canada to explore the nature along some of the many hiking trails available. We can guide you through this unforgettable journey.

Vast areas of magical landscapes, unique flora and fauna and exceptional national parks open nature's door to you. Guided hikes are available in the national parks, as well as beautiful coastal walks.

The Prince Edward Island National Park is one of the smallest parks, but its varied landscape makes it one of the most interesting. Hike along its paths, while keeping an eye open for a fox or a heron.

In Nova Scotia the Bog Trail in Cape Breton Highlands National Park will reveal the mysteries of this ecosystem.

In Ontario you can walk the forest treetops in the Haliburton Wildlife Reserve along a suspension bridge 20 metres above the ground.

Banff and Jasper National Parks in Alberta offer a wide range of guided tours. Join an expedition to the top of Highwood Pass to admire its varied wildlife.

The most interesting hiking trails are usually found in the national and provincial parks.

Beginner hikers can follow the routes crossing the Charlevoix, the Appalachians or the Saguenay Fjord between Tadoussac and Saint Marguerite Bay.
