The capital of Chile is a modern metropolis with an increasingly large infrastructure and a rich historical past. It is characterized by neoclassical, art deco and neogothic architecture. From many places in the city you can see the towering, mythical Andes Mountains. Santiago offers many good cafes, restaurants, shops and design shops, some of which hide the oldest local traditions. In winter, just a few dozen kilometres from the centre the ski resorts open. In the spring you can enjoy the celebrations of Independence Day. In summer Valparaiso and Vina del Mar are worth a visit. In autumn you can enjoy the harvest festival and do some wine tasting in Central Valley.
