Valdivia is situated in the southern half of the country at the confluence of the Calle Calle, Valdivia and Cau Cau Rivers. Founded by the Spanish in the 16th century, it is one of the oldest southern cities. Its architecture retains the influences of European colonization, with strong Spanish, Dutch and German elements. Visit the river-side market where fresh, quality produce is sold and a few sea lions swim about. Learn about the history of the region, the indigenous people and colonization at the Van Maele Historical Museum. The surrounding region also has many opportunities for discovery and adventure.
