Cork is located in southwest Ireland, the second largest city in Ireland, it oozes charm, character with a cosier relaxed small city vibe. The local Corkonians cheekily refer to Cork as the 'real capital of Ireland' in reference to its position in the Irish Civil War. A cosmopolitan place with a long history, with hip coffee shops, cosy pubs with live music and restaurants who claim the title of food capital of Ireland, focused on high quality local produce. Visit the English market and discover all the local artisan producers.

Cork is the perfect beginning to your adventure in a campervan or motorhome. The starting point for the iconic drive the Wild Atlantic Way, you will discover the western coast of Ireland. Wild scenery, irish traditional culture, fresh seafood and warm cosy pubs with celtic music, you are in for a treat.
