Nelspruit is the capital of Mpumalanga and is a large subtropical metropolis. It is a good town to stop in and stock up before heading to Mozambique or Kruger National Park. A few kilometers from the city is the Lowveld National Botanic Gardens home to some 600 varieties of trees, beautiful tropical cycads, nearly 250 birds and many animals inhabiting the rainforest. High view points allow access to stunning scenery, waterfalls and charming family picnic spots.

About 30 km from the tourist hub are the oldest and widest caves in the world, the Sudwala Caves.

Nelspruit is an ideal starting point to head towards Kruger Park or even the mysterious and very preserved Swaziland.
