A Coruna is a lovely Galicia coastal city and an important commercial port. Three distinct neighborhoods make up the city: the City, a charming, ancient area with pretty Roman churches and quiet little squares and churches; the Centre, which consists mainly of large avenues and shopping streets; and the Extension which is further south with industries and warehouses. Visit the Tower of Hercules, a Roman lighthouse classified as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

The rest of the region has magnificent natural sites, such as the Costa da Morte which houses an extremely rich marine ecosystem between its cliffs, beaches and dunes. You can also visit the various nature reserves and parks in the area.
