Gerona is situated in the northeast of the country and has many monuments, museums, festivals, restaurants and walks in the old city. It still retains ruins and other testimonies from its history from Roman times up to General Alvarez Castro's resistance against Napoleon. The old town is characterized by orange and ochre facades reflected in the Onyar River which has several bridges offering unique views. Villages close to the city offer more camping opportunities and 'wild' camping (camping outside of designated campsites) is tolerated.
