

Capitol Reef

Rare Rock Formations

Crossing Utah in a motorhome will allow you to really enjoy a relatively unknown beauty, unspoiled and absolutely tranquil.

Situated between Bryce Canyon National Park and Canyonlands, Capitol Reef National Park is popular for its colourful cliffs and tranquility. This park is less famous, and therefore less touristy than others, but very nice to visit. You will take the Scenic Drive to get there and you will see that American roads are very suitable for motorhome driving. CampingCar-Online suggests that you go to Gossenecks Overlook and Fruita Oasis with its 2,000 fruit trees along the Fremont River. Enjoy the tranquility and the different landscapes that this park has to offer.

You will find campsites both in the park and outside of it.
